others positively. He emphasizes that leadership isn't a position but a calling, requiring humility, self-sacrifice, and a relentless pursuit of holiness.

The Importance of Character in Spiritual Leadership

Central to Sanders' work is the emphasis on character. He argues that a leader's character is far more influential than their skills or position. Integrity, humility, love, and compassion are not mere add-ons but essential ingredients of authentic leadership. This approach contrasts sharply with the often-prevalent leadership styles characterized by control and self-aggrandizement.
